

THE SPOUT SPRING TIMES.

VOL. 1.

SPOUT SPRING, KY., JAN. 25 1893.

NO. 1.

While the County Clerk at Frankfort, was issuing license to Robert May to marry Malvina Griffin, an old lover of the lady appeared and warned the intended groom that married life would be very unpleasant, when the bride turned on the discarded lover and said: "Oh, shut up; you are just mad because you didn't get me."

We have quite a pleasant time when we get in company with our town boys, As Barnett plays the fiddle, Russell Christopher whistles, Tom laughs and Bud Barger is always talking of trading and yet, none of them trades any. Bud has taken a p sition with The Times printing Co.

MONDAY ENCOURAGEMENT.

He— I do not believe I shall marry. I haven't courage to propose.

She— Why not court a widow?—(New York Herald.)

Our old party boys bought a bunch of poultry about one week ago, and sold same Sunday, at a profit of 50 per. cent. on their investment.

The following is one of the popular songs of Ash Grove:

Come boys, let's sing the old time chorus:
My old cow crossed the road cause she crossed the road sir, the reason why she crossed the road cause she crossed the road sir.

While speaking of the boys' song we must not fail to make mention of Russell Christopher's favorite:

I've got no wife but I will have one, I've got no wife now, but I will have soon as I get my spikard done.
